Course Objective

Achieve success in today's complex world is becoming more and more challenging. The rules in present global scenario are changing every day. Facing the challenge will become even more intense. The speed with which change is occurring will increase, and the competition will intensify. To lead an organization means to be able to design, and redesign the whole organization, departments, and leaders, with new targets quickly to create a competitive advantage in turbulent times. Many employees will have to transform an organizational culture that was founded on yesterday's paradigm and ideas. Some so ingrained into the previous culture that it will be extremely difficult to pry it loose. But that's what you'll be facing and we'll help you transform that organization, or show you how. Priorities will shift and thinking will have to change. Attitudes, mind sets, behaviors, reflecting new and different social and organizational values will have to be aligned. For many people learning to adjust to change will be difficult, but that's what you, as the leader will be facing. Organizational success will require leadership that is focused on positive Results! Creative leadership and team building skills could enable you to nurture yourself and maintain relationships that are truly mutually supportive, both of which can significantly reduce the level of stress in your life.

Therefore, if you want to brush up your leadership & Team Work skills, you need to understand and attend this course which would have modules like: Personal Empowerment and Dynamism module, Visioning and Modeling Change Module and Enhancing Connectedness and Teamwork module.
